Dr. Barton prepares to subject beef cells to high-speed pressure in the centrifuge in his lab.

Dr. Barton Progresses In Cell Research Work

by Greg Mahoney

How would you like to be hit by a pressure 148,000 times the force of gravity—enough to make your 200 lbs. weigh 14,800 tons? That's what Dr. Jay Barton is throwing at small particles of beef cells in his new biological research laboratory on the second floor of the Science Building.

Dr. Barton, of course, is carrying out the research project which he started last September, for which he received a $20,000 grant from the National Science Foundation last summer.

Nucleus Controls Cell

The purpose of the research is to determine, if possible, the exact nature of the functional link between the cytoplasm (the living material of the cell) and the nucleus of the cell. Exactly how does the nucleus control the activity of the rest of the cell? That is the question Dr. Barton is trying to answer. He is trying to find the secret of what he calls the cell's "information transmission system."

To do this he has been breaking individual cells into their component parts. This complicated process begins with a gentle fracturing or grinding up of an experimental cell.

Dr. Barton is using cells from the thymus gland of beef liver. From this grinding result the nucleus, the mitochondria (large granules), the microsomes (small granules), and other soluble fractions.

Break Cells Apart

Dr. Barton then subjects these separate of the cell to centrifugal force in the laboratory centrifuge. The heavy particles are run off at low speeds in the centrifuge, while higher speeds are needed for the lighter particles. A force of 1,000 times the normal gravity is applied to breaking down of nuclei; a force of 24 times gravity is needed for the large granules; and small granules require a force of 148,000 times gravity.

Next Step in Project

After this separation process, Dr. Barton uses routine methods to analyze components of compounds. These are further subjected to chemical and analytical extraction, so that any possibility of the existence of a single kind of information-carrying mechanism can be found and verified.

The next step in the project, according to Dr. Barton, is to make a definitive amino-acid analysis of the particles and study their composition.

Asked what he thought about the results of his research thus far, Dr. Barton replied simply, "Pleased."

Groundbreaking Set for New Halls

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new residence halls will be held on Sunday, June 2, after the commencement Mass. The sites will be broken by the two men for whom the new halls will be named, Mr. George Halas, and Mr. Gallagher of Indianapolis. The ground will be blessed by Bishop Carberry.

Mr. Gallagher is the first president of the Board of Lay Trustees and has been associated with the college for the past 10 years.

Through the efforts of Charles Halleck, congressman from Indiana's Second Congressional district and a member of the board of Lay Trustees, the college received a $680,000 loan from the government which made the new halls possible.

The new buildings will be located between the power plant and Noll hall and will run in a direct line north and south facing Noll hall.

Bids for the halls will be let after the groundbreaking ceremonies. Construction will begin sometime in July. They will be ready for occupancy by September of 1958.

Work will also begin this summer in renovating the residence rooms in the bottom floor of the Administration building and in the dorms of the Science hall. The rooms in the Administration building will be used as offices by the Division chairmen, and a new science lab will be installed in the Science hall. This work will also be completed by September of '58.

Five new professors and three returning professors will be added to the faculty and staff next September.

Those who taught here previously are Frs. Joseph Otte, William Eilerman, and Mr. Richard Scharf.

2 Doctors Among Newcomers

The new professors include: Fr. Paul J. Wellman, M.A., Sr. Mary Petronella Schroeder, Ph.D., Fr. Aloysius O'Dell, S.T.L., Mr. Louis C. Gatto, M.A., and Mr. Robert Kreyche, Ph.D.

Fr. Wellman will be the new superintendent of buildings and grounds and will also teach business administration.

Mr. Scharf Former IM Director

Fr. Otte, formerly treasurer of St. Joe, is returning from a sick leave. He will teach accounting.

Fr. Eilerman is returning from St. Louis University where he obtained his Master's Degree. He will also teach Accounting.

Mr. Scharf, former basketball coach and intramural director, is returning from Indiana University where he studied Health and Safety. He will teach physical education and accounting.

Mr. Gatto To Teach English

Sr. Petronella will be an assistant professor in Biology and Fr. O'Dell will be an instructor in religion.

Mr. Gatto will be an assistant professor in English. He is from New Trier high school in Evanston, Ill.

Fr. Ranly To Do Grad Work

Dr. Kreyche, who will be an assistant in philosophy, is the author of a logic textbook Logic for Undergraduates which is used in over 40 colleges and universities. At St. Joseph's he will use his own metaphysics notes which are to be published soon.

Fr. Ernest Ranly who taught philosophy this past year will go to graduate school at St. Louis University.

Joseph L. Block To Deliver Commencement Address

by Jim McCullough

A total of 120 degrees will be conferred on June 3 when St. Joseph's college holds its 62nd commencement exercises. Mr. Joseph L. Block, president of Inland Steel, will give the commencement address.

The day's program will begin with an academic procession to the chapel at 10:15 a.m., followed by Baccalaureate Mass at 10:30.

Reception To End Festivities

At 1:45 there will be an academic procession to the auditorium for the awarding of the degrees. Mr. Bohumir Kryl, whose long and distinguished career is treated elsewhere in this paper, will receive an honorary degree, along with the principal speaker, Mr. Block.

Presiding officer at the commencement exercises will be the Most Reverend John J. Carberry, Ph.D., S.T.D., J.C.D., auxiliary bishop of Lafayette.

Begins Steel Career in 1922

Raleigh hall will be the site of a faculty reception for graduates, parents, and guests at 3:30, terminating the day's festivities.

Mr. Block began his career with Inland Steel in 1922. While working his way to the top of this company, he dedicated much of his time to charitable, social, and civic causes.

Active in Civic Affairs

For 21 years he was a director of the Jewish Federation of Chicago. The Chicago Community Fund, the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, and the Mayor's Revenue Commission are three more organizations to which he has devoted his selfless work.

During World War II he spent three years in Washington D. C. as a "dollar a year" man. His three annual paychecks are framed on his office wall today as a memento of his government service.

Collects Lincoln Data

Mr. Block is a devoted family man, having a married daughter, a granddaughter, and two grandsons. He is also a once-a-week golfer and an avid collector of "Lincolnia"—letters, books, and memorabilia concerning Abraham Lincoln.

At Present he is a director of the American Iron and Steel Institute, the Commonwealth Edison Company, and the First National Bank of Chicago.

licity director in 1955-56, and placement director this year.

Born 33 years ago in Racine, Wis., McAvoy attended high school at DeLaSalle in Chicago. He was on active Air Force duty from 1942 to 1946, after which he worked for the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Chicago until 1950.

During his career as a St. Joe student he served two terms as Student Council president. Under his presidency the Council attained a stature and influence never before known at St. Joe's.

Joseph L. Block

Hugh McAvoy, Alumni Head Resigns Office

Hugh C. McAvoy, director of the St. Joseph Alumni association for the past three years, has resigned his position, effective June 15, 1957.

He has accepted a post in Chicago as an employment consultant with the Dorothy Dockstader agency. The outgoing director will reside at 4425 W. Cortez in Chicago.

The duties of McAvoy's position as alumni director will be assumed by the Foundation office, headed by Fr. John M. Lefko, presently secretary-treasurer of the Alumni association.

Among other accomplishments, his tenure in the alumni office saw the establishment of the annual Alumni Fund, started in 1955. He also held other posts at the College, including that of athletic pub-

These Two Received Awards

Fr. Gross presents the Louis B. White award to Urban Thobe, junior from Dayton, Ohio. The award is presented annually to the most outstanding member of the Glee Club in memory of Louis White, former Glee Club president who was killed in a plane crash.

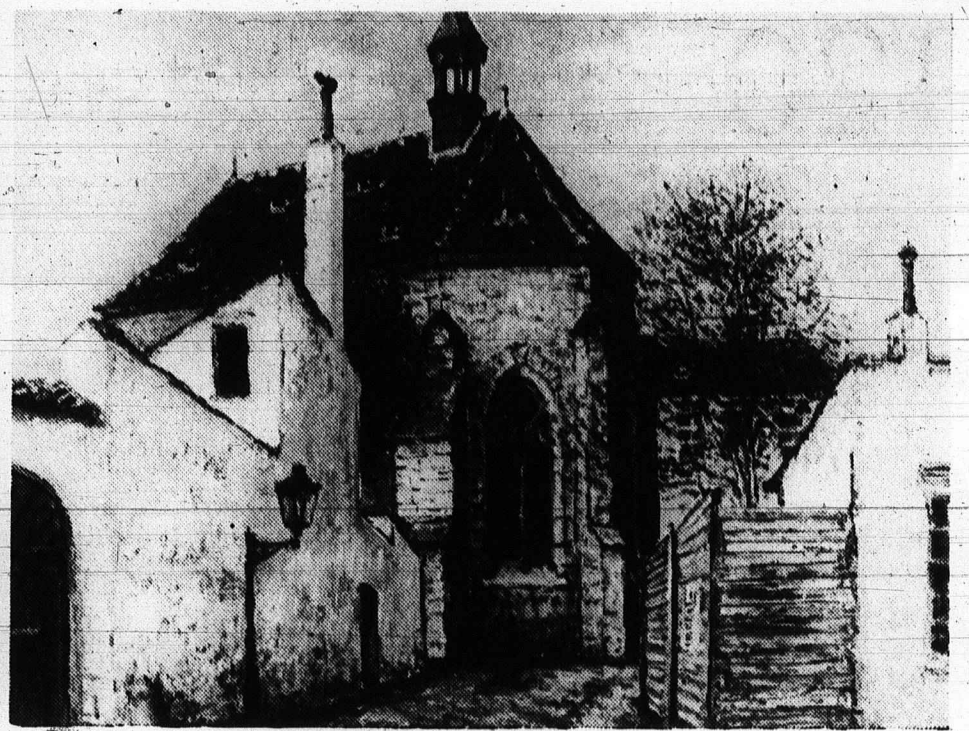

Fr. Banet's mother receives the second annual Mother of the Year award. Fr. Banet stands proudly by as Fr. Gross presents the award to Mrs. Banet. Fr. Gross' mother was the recipient of the award last year on Parents' Day.

Jacob Esselens is the painter of the Dutch Fisher Folk. He was born in Holland in 1626. His work grew out of the Dutch school of Rembrandt. Esselens painted villages on the banks of rivers, buildings with fountains, stag hunts, and shipping pieces. He died in 1687.

"The Spanish Woman" was painted by Labradora Valenciana, a Spaniard. (This painting was donated by Mr. Hans L. Henoit.)

The Churchyard Scene is the work of Al LeCoque. A Hungarian, he was born Alois A. Kohout in Prague in 1891. LeCoque, the name which he goes by now, is a literal translation of Kohout. LeCoque did his studying in Paris under Emile Bernard. He witnessed some of the World War II destruction firsthand and his work includes the painting of a procession of coffins with a graveyard in the background dotted with crosses. LeCoque is still living—in France.

"Christ in Glory" is the work of Zampieri (1581-1641), usually known as Domenichino. Born in Bologna, he also studied under Carracci, aiding him at times with the Farnese frescoes. Zampieri soon became distinguished as an accurate designer and true colorist; he was employed in painting frescoes by Cardinals Borghese, Farnese, and Aldobrandini. His reputation rose so high that it frequently excited the jealousy of other painters. While decorating the chapel of St. Januarius in the Cathedral of Naples, he was so persecuted by the notorious cabal—Corenzio, Spagnoletto, and Carracciolo—that he worried himself to death or, as is suspected, died of poison.

"The Vision of St. Anthony" is the handiwork of Sebastian Ricci (1659-1734). An Italian, he was associated with the Venetian School of Veronese. For a number of years Ricci traveled around Europe and accepted various painting assignments. In Vienna he decorated the Palace of Schonbrunn. Next, he traveled to England, where, during a 10-year residence, he painted the chapel at Bulstrode for the Duke of Portland, the hall of Burlington House, an altar piece of the chapel of Chelsea College, and other works at Hampton Court. He returned to Venice, where he worked until his death.

Landscape

The Desert Scene was painted by Jean Leon Gerome (1824-1904). Born in Vesoul, France, he was, like Ricci, a traveler. His first successful picture depicted a group of Russian musicians and was actually painted in Russia. After visiting Egypt, he turned out a number of admirable paintings, notably "Recruits Crossing in the Desert," "Memmon and Sesostri," and "Camels at Watering-Place." A variety of subjects, both ancient and modern, lift Gerome to a place of distinction in 19th century French painting.

The painter of "The Tribute Money" was Giovanni Battista Garracciolo. Commonly known as Battistello, he was born in Italy in 1580. He was heavily influenced by Caravaggio and the Carracci. Using the same fresco style which Annibale Carracci employed for the famous Farnese Palace, Carracciolo tinged many of his paintings with the naturalistic sweep of his contemporary Spagnoletto. Many of his paintings, such as "Mary Magdalene Anointing the Feet of Christ," "The Death of the Virgin," and "The Assumption" were painted for the churches of Naples. Carracciolo died at Naples in 1641.

Karl Heffner (1849-1896) is the author of the Landscape. Born in Germany, he studied at Munich and did much of his work in Dresden, as well as England and Italy. In 1866 he was honored as a member of the Munich Academy. He was made professor in 1887, receiving honorable at Paris in 1889. He specialized in genre paintings and landscapes. (This painting was donated by Mr. Hans L. Henoit.)

MODERN MAECENAS

Bohumir Kryl, Musician, Patron of Arts Gives $32,000 Worth of Paintings to College

by Jim O'Brien

In 1894 a 19-year-old Bohemian immigrant was helping to sculpture the Soldiers' Monument which stands today at the center of Indianapolis. One evening he learned that the famous band of John Philip Sousa was to play in Indianapolis.

After the Sousa concert the young Bohemian went to the musicians' Hall where Sousa's men were feasting on sandwiches and beer. There he sought out Sousa's cornet soloist, Albert Bode, for an audition. The two went into a private room, while the others remained outside.

"That Can't be Bode!"

A few minutes later the golden tones of a cornet broke out. Astonished, one Sousa artist gasped: "My God, that can't be Bode! He never played that good in his life." That night the young Bohemian, Bohumir Kryl, packed away his sculpture tools and left Indianapolis with Sousa's band.

Mr. Kryl, now 82 years old and a resident of Chicago, was born in Bohemia and educated in Czechoslovakia. After performing with Sousa for three seasons, he organized and traveled with his own band and then his own symphony orchestra, covering a span of some 48 years.

1,600,000 Miles of Music

During his long career, Mr. Kryl, who besides being a virtuoso cornetist is also a violinist, has traveled more than a million and a half miles and given more than 17,000 concerts. He has appeared before at least 100 leading educational institutions annually, among them St. Joseph's College and St. Charles Seminary.

He has been called by celebrated critics one of the most magnetic and forceful chefs d'orchestre before the public. He has also composed cornet solos.

Just 10 days ago Mr. Kryl renewed his musical acquaintance with St. Joe when he raised his baton for the first time in 10 years and guest-directed the St. Joseph's band in two numbers of its annual spring concert.

Donates Paintings

In addition to his musical abilities, Mr. Kryl is a patron of the arts, collecting paintings of the old masters worth thousands of dollars. In recent years he has donated to St. Joseph's College from his personal collection seven paintings valued at $32,000 and 30 orchestral scores, collectors' items, worth several thousand dollars.

Six of the paintings shown on this page are the gifts of Mr. Kryl. The other two were donated by his friend, Mr. Hans L. Henoit.

On June 2 during the commencement exercises, in appreciation of his friendship and generosity, St. Joseph's College will bestow upon Mr. Bohumir Kryl, along with Mr. Joseph Block, president of Inland Steel, the degree of honorary doctor of laws.

Super-charged Battery

Varsity Views

by Tom Donahue

This being the last issue of Stuff this school year I'd like to take you back over the last nine months and review the highlights of the sporting events. All in all it was a great year for the Joemen and one that will be long remembered by Puma rooters everywhere.

For the first time in the school's history we took an undisputed conference championship and went on from there to be named the National Inter-Collegiate Football Champions for 1956. Coach Jauron and his boys deserve the gratitude of everyone, students, faculty, and Alumni for the job that they turned in. They worked hard, to the man, and they put St. Joe on the map.

In Coach Jauron we have the finest football man in the business today, and I mean it. The man lives for football and that's what it takes to be good. He's ably assisted by Coaches O'Connell and Shemky and they deserve a lot of credit, too. They work hard, on and off the field, scouting the opposition, going thru movies to pick out weak points in our plays and those of the opponents, and all the other things that it takes to help produce a winner. Working together they form a combination that's hard to beat.

Those of you that journeyed to Little Rock won't forget that ball game in a hurry. The condition of the field was awful and the national television audience didn't get a chance to see the nation's best small college team with a full head of steam up but what they saw they liked. The mythical National Championship proves that.

The basketball season was a successful one from any way you look at it. The team got off to a slow start but came around nicely and made a fine showing in conference play. They went up to Chicago and took the Holiday tournament. They went down to Butler and took a sweet 68-67 decision, the first time that that has been accomplished in years. Coach O'Connell did a fine job and he can be proud of every boy on the ball club. He lost only one starter from the 1956-57 team and has the nucleus of a good ball club next year. Watch their smoke.

Club Banquet, Elections Conclude Year for CP's

Jack Cochran, junior from Gary, Ind., will head the Columbian Players next year. Other officers-elect for 1957-58 include Joe Armon, Chicago sophomore, vice-president, Jim Rogers, sophomore from Oak Park, Ill., treasurer, and Bill Schuler, junior from Cary, Ill., secretary.

Columbian Player activities for the year ended with a banquet at Hazledon Country club. Members of the Debate team joined the C.P.'s for the occasion.

Mr. Willard Walsh of the college's speech department was the main speaker for the evening. Mr. Ralph Cappuccilli, director of the C.P.'s presented honorary lifetime membership certificates to the following seniors: Dick Rezek, Bernie Balas, Ray Malik, Chuck Vietzen, John White, Ron Knaus, Tom Alter, and Tom Kinstle. Mr. Cappuccilli was also presented with a lifetime membership certificate.

Special merit awards were given to Bill Schuler and Bernie Balas for acting and to Joe Armon for stage work. The certificates won by the C.P.'s in the one-act play festival were distributed.

The organization received a certificate for its presentation of the "Other Apostles." Balas and Jim Trotter received certificates for acting in the play.

Halls Closed

Saint Joseph's students who visit the campus during the summer months are not permitted to enter any of the residence halls without permission of Father Baird, the Director of Summer Events. Some of the halls are in use all summer and the others at least part of the summer by various groups and this regulation has been put into effect to avoid embarrassment to the guests of the college.

Attention, Student Drivers Official for '57-58

The College will provide one large parking lot for student cars directly west of the campus. (across the road west of Bennett and Noll Halls). Henceforth all parking and driving of student cars on campus proper will be prohibited.

Day students and off-campus resident students will use the parking lot in front of the Rec Hall.

The use of student cars generally, together with fines for violations of this rule, will be determined by the Dean of Men and his committee.

Golf, Net Men Finish Season Without Victory

by Joe Gregorich

Hampered by the cold and rainy weather, the 1957 St. Joseph's golf and tennis teams have not fared well this season, neither having won a match thus far.

The linksmen, operating out of home course Curtis Creek Country club, have come out on the short end of five matches, plus finishing eighth at the Little State Meet. After having an initial duel with Ball State cancelled because of cold weather, the golf squad lost matches to Indiana State twice, 14-1 and 17-1, Bellarmine, 17-1, and Illinois Tech, 11-4. In addition, the Puma linksmen finished last in a triangular meet, being defeated by Valparaiso, 12½-5½, and by a powerful Wabash team, 17-1.

The Little State Meet was held at Indianapolis on May 17 despite and almost constant rain. The meet was won by Wabash, while the Pumas were finishing eighth in a field of 12. Senior Ron Keller and junior George Lux, both shooting in the low 80's, have proven to be the most consistent golfers of this year's squad.

The tennis team met with a limited season in 1957, having all regularly scheduled meets rained out except an engagement with

With a record of three wins and nine losses going into the final game of the season at DePauw, Tuesday May 21, the Puma baseball team can look back on a non-expected dismal season. Coach Robert Shemky's diamond crew has shown spurts of potential prominence, but the lack of that extra punch at the plate and unerring accuracy afield have accounted for the losing record.

Greg Jancich, the literal mainstay of the Puma pitching staff, hurled his best performance of the year, a 16-strikeout, two-hit shutout at Butler, May 11, in the opener of twin bill that St. Joe won, 3-0. Jancich allowed but one walk in besting Frank Huff.

Vrdolyak Relieves Walters
Bob Valencik gave the Pumas a 2-0 edge with a timely bases-loaded single in the sixth inning. Jancich aided his own cause with a single in the eighth that drove Jim Gagliano across.

In the second game, the Bulldogs hammered Willie Walters for eight hits and six runs before the St. Joe starter was removed after one out in the fourth. Ed Vrdolyak took over and turned in a brilliant relief job, allowing no runs and two hits in two and two-thirds innings, but Butler went on to win, 6-1.

Valpo Beats Jancich Again
The Pumas had more chances to score than what they capitalized on. Butler hurler Gene Harvey gave up seven hits and two walks in the seven-inning tilt, but St. Joe left 11 runners stranded on the base paths. The lone run they scored came in on an error by Butler's left-fielder in the fifth.

After a rain-out at Purdue May 14, the Joemen traveled to Valparaiso the following day to take a 3-0 defeat at the hands of Bob Lohse, the pitcher who out-duelled Jancich in a 2-1 contest here May 1. Jancich again was the victim on a relatively cold day for baseball. The Valpo win marked the sixth consecutive for the defending ICC diamond champs in the all-time series with St. Joe.

Jancich Nears ICC Record
The Pumas reached Lohse for eight hits, equaling Valpo's safety count, but once again were plagued with inability to drive the runners across—11 men were left on base.

Jancich struck out seven Crusader batters to bring his conference total to 43, just seven away from the all-time ICC record.

Aces Clobber Vrdolyak
Evansville, behind the five-hit shutout pitching of Bud George, dealt St. Joe an 8-0 loss May 18 at Evansville in the first game of a double header. Rain late in the afternoon cancelled the nightcap.

Ed Vrdolyak took the loss, as he was rapped for five runs on eight hits, including two home runs, in the first four innings. After allowing a double and a homer to the first two batters in the fifth, Vrdolyak was relieved by Willie Walters. The latter pitched creditably, giving up only four hits the rest of the way.

Goldrick Fails in Clutch
The Pumas had only two real chances to score. Jim Gagliano and Bob Valencik opened the fourth inning with successive singles, but didn't move as Tom Deem flied to right and Ray Kuzniar hit into a double play.

In the ninth, St. Joe had the bases loaded on two walks and a hit batsman with two out, but Mike Goldrick, pinch-hitting for Walters, took a called third strike.

INTRAMURAL SCOREBOARD

by Tom Uecker

This year's Intramural program is finally drawing to a close along with the school year. All that remains to finish the current schedule is the championship game in 12" softball, Bennett's once-beaten "Last Chances" forced the deciding game by downing the previously unbeaten "7-7's" from E. Seifert 11-10 last Friday in the finals of the double elimination tournament.

Noll's "Gamokes" handily copped the 16" softball crown by going through the season unbeaten and pounding out a 17-9 decision over the Bennett "Bombers" in the finals. Bob O'Brien of the "Gamokes" hit a three run homer in this game.

Participation in the Spring horseshoe tourney was limited but some good matches were played nonetheless. Dan Jung of Drexel captured the singles title and combined with John Doherty to give Drexel the doubles crown also.

The Intramural program at St. Joe this year was a great success with approximately 65% of the students participating. Special mention should be made here of the fine job Tom Mario did with the I. M. bowling. Much credit is also due to Coach Shemky for his big job this year. This was his first year here and he surely deserves much credit for the way in which he handled the program. The most credit however, must go to the student body. No program is a success without participants!

MURRAY'S

Meet St. Joe's Cliff: A Mountain of a Man

by Tom Mahoney

One of the most important undergraduates in the athletic scheme here at St. Joe never has competed in a varsity athletic contest. He is, of course, Clifford Robinson, Indianapolis senior who will receive his Bachelor's degree in Physical Education this coming June.

Cliff's career as a trainer began when he was a sixth grader at P. S. 17 in Indianapolis. Here he became "athletic manager" for the football team.

Rooms With Goose Tatum

His big chance to learn about training came when, as a boy of twelve, he approached Bunny Downs, manager of the Indianapolis Clowns of the Negro League and was hired as traveling batboy. For the next two years, Cliff spent his summers traveling with the Clowns, all the time observing the training techniques of the team trainer, Sam Williams.

Among the ballplayers on the Clowns at the time was Goose Tatum, perhaps better known for his exploits on the basketball floor, both with the Globe-trotters and now the Harlem Magicians. Cliff, in fact, roomed with Tatum while he was with the team.

Attends Crispus Attucks

Some of the other stars whom Cliff saw perform during these years included Sam Jethroe, Larry Doby, Luke Easter, Jim Pendleton, and "Suitcase" Simpson. Oh yes, and an old timer called Satchel Paige.

"There were a lot of other good ones, too," says Cliff, "including a ballplayer with the Clowns called Henry Merchant. I'm grateful to him because he helped me get this job which turned out to be such a big break."

In September '49, Cliff enrolled at Crispus Attucks where he served as football manager for four years. During the summers he worked as a mail clerk at Vonnegut's Hardware Store, and spent his evenings at the Butler fieldhouse where he talked shop with Jim Morris, then the Butler trainer.

No Guessing For Trainers

When Cliff graduated he had made up his mind that he wanted to be a trainer himself. The athletic director at Attucks at that time, Alonzo Waterford, was a good friend of Fr. Edward Roof of St. Joe, and was instrumental in arranging an interview for Cliff. As a result, Cliff came here in '53 to begin his stay as student and trainer. At St. Joe he has also had the opportunity of working with the trainer of the Chicago Bears, Ed Rozy.

As trainer here, Cliff's duties have fallen into two main categories, first aid and charge of equipment and trip planning. The first rule for any trainer, he says, is "don't pretend to be a doctor." The job of a trainer leaves no room for diagnosing. Cliff handles sprains and bruises, but never guesses if there is doubt that the injury may be serious. His second job includes the storage, care and buying of equipment and handling of the details on varsity trips.

Uncle Sam Comes First

He prefers the football season to any of the rest, because "things slow down quite a bit more during the others." He may work as few as two hours some days and as many as fourteen on others, especially on trips.

Cliff's future plans include a year of study at Indiana University, where he hopes to receive his certificate in Physical Therapy. But this will not take place for a few years, since he faces a hitch with Uncle Sam first. He hopes to receive a special classification in the service because of his skills as a trainer.

Writes Appropriate Thesis

On June 29 he will marry Miss Emily Gray of Indianapolis—more specifically, of the apartment directly upstairs from the Robinsons. Cliff and Emily became engaged last Christmas. They had known one another since grade school days and renewed their friendship when the Grays conveniently moved in upstairs two years ago.

Although he expects to be drafted in September, Cliff is hopeful of obtaining a job as a teacher-trainer before then. His honors at St. Joe include selection in "Who's Who," and membership in the honorary scholastic fraternity, Delta Epsilon Sigma. His thesis, appropriately enough was "The Athletic Manager; His Duties and Responsibilities."

Jerry Bosch

Bosch Becomes New Stuff Editor

Jerry Bosch, junior from Chicago, is the new editor of STUFF, according to a late announcement by moderator Fr. James Hinton. He takes over his new duties with the current issue.

Bosch attended high school at Mt. Carmel and Spalding, both in Chicago. After spending three semesters at Loyola as a business administration major, he transferred at St. Joseph's in September, 1956, as an English-Journalism major.

Since coming to St. Joe, the new editor has worked on the paper both as reporter and as layout man. He also had experience on his high school paper at Spalding as sports editor.

DeMint to Lead Riflemen Next Year

In their final meeting of the year, the St. Joe Rifle club elected its new officers for next year.

Tom DeMint, sophomore from Falls Church, Va., is the new president. Mike Ryan, freshman vet from Chicago, Ill., will serve as vice-president and Ron Weiland, sophomore from Evergreen, Ill., will assume the duties of secretary-treasurer.

The club hopes to have more members next year. An effort will be made to interest the incoming freshmen in the club.

With the procurement of five government rifles, the prospect of entering into intercollegiate competition, and the approved rifle ranges, the club's future looks bright.

Commerce Club Ends Activities with Banquet

Commerce club activities for the year ended with the election of officers for next year and the annual organization banquet.

An address by Mr. Robert Joyce, manager of Seven-Up bottling operations in Indiana, highlighted the banquet at Hazledon Country club.

Forty Commerce club members heard Joyce, former president of Canada Dry Bottling Company of Indiana and export manager for Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., describe the history of the soft drink bottling industry.

Pointing to his own organization as an example, Joyce emphasized that opportunity still exists in America to those who are willing to accept personal responsibility.

Another feature of the banquet was the presentation of the annual Father Gordon Memorial Award to president Bernie Balas. The Gordon Award is given each year to the senior member who, in the opinion of the members, has made the greatest contribution to the club. Twelve senior members also received Commerce club keys for four semesters of active membership.

Heading the awards committee was treasurer Tom Alter, while Ron Frey handled the ballot for the Gordon Award. Banquet arrangements were handled by vice-president Kev Gallagher.

The Commerce club raffle was pronounced a success by president Balas, due to the efforts of secretary Al Salerno, Ron Frey, Jim Archer, Vic Palmer, Ron Jensen, Jim McGowan, Hank Stukenborg, Bill Riffe, and Ray Goberville.

The president extended his thanks for cooperation during the year to Fr. Lefko; Dr. Jones, the Commerce club moderator; his fellow officers, Alter, Gallagher, and Salerno; and to all members of the organization.

Serving as Commerce club president next year will be Jim Archer, junior from Twin Branch, West Virginia. Other newly elected officers include Hank Stukenborg, sophomore from Donaldson, Ind., vice-president; Vic Palmer, junior from Michigan City, treasurer; and Dick Marquart, freshman from Fort Wayne, secretary.
